Tree Plantation-

Tree plantation is the process of planting young trees (seedlings) to establish forests for various purposes, including environmental restoration, commercial timber production, and aesthetic landscaping. Key benefits include improving air quality by absorbing pollutants and producing oxygen, mitigating climate change by absorbing carbon dioxide, and preventing soil erosion.

Effective tree planting involves selecting the right site and species, digging a proper hole that is wider and shallower than the root ball, planting the seedling so its root collar is at ground level, and watering it thoroughly to settle the soil.
